

In response to recent notice that LPFM stations may take priority over FM translator services, I would like to share my thoughts about how K-LOVE and Airl should not be forced off of the air. These stations work with multiple organizations within my home community to offer self-help, counseling, shelter, and pastoral services. The 24 hour availability to talk with a pastor via these stations has kept many people from ending their lives and helping them through times of crisis. Without these services, many members of my community would be at a loss for services when they need help. Thank you for your consideration in this matter.
Sincerely, Leigh-Anne Sims
